Provisions to Bellvoir Camp. An accident to the boiler of the United States Army quartermaster service steamer Pontonier put the vessel out of commission for a time yesterday and prevented her making her regular trip to the instruction camp at Bellvoir, Va., with provisions and stores of various kinds. It was late yesterday evening before the work on the Pontonier was complete and she was able to make her trip.

The accident to the steamer caused the men in camp at Bellvoir to go without fresh provisions which were to have been used yesterday, but they will have them on hand for today's mess.
The Pontonier is making regular trips between Washington barracks and the camp, stopping at Fort Foote whenever necessary. Recently the army engineer service dredge Dalecarlia dug at the Bellyoir channel into the pier at the Bellvoir camp so that the Pontonier could go to the pier on all stages of the tide. SHOOTS WELL FOR NOVICE.
